

FREE ARTICLES for YOUR WEBSITES

OTHER REALITIES IN THE MIND

AUTHOR Robin G Howard

OTHER REALITIES IN THE MIND

This article is free to publish on websites without any changes in the text. The credits must also be published alongside in its entirety. If in any doubt please contact admin@robinhoward.co.uk

This article is copyright to Robin G Howard

Fantasy is based on the reality in thoughts. A good detective novel reflects society. A detective has to try and unravel the mystery of a perfect murder. The supernatural and paranormal is all around us. Sometimes it is in dreams and also reality. Science fiction predicts future events and revelations in stories related to as fiction. Holy books are fiction written from the imagination of men. They too reflect on the future trying to show us a better way of life. But without some belief other than our physical reality we are but empty containers on a short voyage through eternity. The invisible lines of magnetism that swirl around us are not seen, yet we know they exist. They can only be seen in the suns fiery atomic furnace or by placing a magnet underneath a sheet of paper and sprinkling iron filings onto it. Those unseen forces that swirl around us affect all atoms of physicality, the sun the moon and our own bodies.

Scientists know the imperceptible notion of gravity, and every one of its existence, but no-one can explain why or how it looks. There are yet no formulas to solve the fundamental basics of this phenomenon. The answer lies in the minus or negative equations that no one, however, can understand. The sceptics have doubts about clairvoyants and psychics because they have tried to put a timescale on future events. I know from my own personal experience that this is not possible as there is no 'time' in the astral realm. As single human units of existence, we can see events and pictures forgotten or difficult to interpret. Sometimes tied up by feelings or emotions.

Fifty years ago in a dream, I moved into the future to witness an unusual event. Upon waking, I blurted it out to several colleagues who then ridiculed me. I then forgot about it, but eighteen months later it was headlined in the local paper. I was wrong in revealing it because it was meant for me alone and no one else. A gift from the astral realm to show me that there was a lot more to existence than I would ever know in physical form.

A collective of people with psychic abilities working together can create quite startling results. Meditating with a group of like-minded people can create extraordinary reactions. Unfortunately, it takes only one negative or selfish mind to disrupt the collective and cause confusion. I had difficulty in controlling my ascent through my head chakra and ended up somewhere in the universe surrounded by human reptilian heads. Again, this was for me and no one else although others in the group knew of them.

My links with the astral realm are intermittent. I find that I cannot talk to relatives as some psychics contacting the astral direct. At times I awoke in the early morning by someone shouting my name or showing me a thunderstorm or as a warning a very boisterous firework display. Once again this was for me and no-one else, and with luck, the fireworks will not happen again. Two years later my life was significant in change and turmoil.

Writers of fiction don't realise that at times they are remote channelling to a different reality. This is not an out of body experience but more of channelling. The intense feelings and emotions revealing a picture without the use of visual perception. The astral is a world of great beauty where spiritual entities live and dwell, some in a mirror body of the physical, others in streams of light and shade. It is all created and held together by majestic high creatures of light. We are all made from ethereal essence and do not die. Only our bodies have departed from the physical world for in truth we are all celestial, collective and individual. The area is as vast as space itself with the ethereal and physical worlds all coexisting on different frequencies. The two never mix.

Angels and Archangels watch over the magical landscape display a white heavenly glowing light around them. In the astral world, the most divine and wondrous sections glisten with the most striking colours imaginable. Other places are dark and formidable held together by tortured souls. They manifest the most miserable of existences.

This book creates an in-depth focus on the realms of the astral: the afterlife. What is this strange and compelling world that we are all heading towards? After reading this your eyes open to a beautiful yet formidable new world. Whether the astral realm is fiction or reality, only you can decide. I know it exists.

This is a free Article for websites, ezines, clubs and social media. The article may be used in its entirety with the credits to Robin G Howard author of the supernatural non-fiction and the 7 book sci fi fantasy series of Jim Long Space Agent.

CREDITS - <http://www.robinghoward.co.uk>

<http://www.jimlongspaceagent.co.uk>

<http://shoptly.com/rghbooks>

<https://www.amazon.com/-/e/B008CNCMDU>

