

The World Press and Media Ignore This, Why?

Important scientific facts that cannot be explained

A team of scientists is investigating a unique ranch in Utah, USA. The investigation is now shown in a TV series on the UK Blaze channel but not on the main news outlets or significant TV channels. It is entirely disregarded by major media as though it is of no concern to the public. Although the early series was slightly below standard, the debunking critics had a field day on its production and one of the characters.

However, in the latest episodes, there are several scientific facts that the world should know about. Now recapping the last seen programme, I discovered the following items. An invisible object in the sky. Something diverted rockets fired from the ground and flung them in different directions by invisible phenomena. Rejection by the object switched off the sophisticated recording data from the projected scanning. In a helicopter at 5000 feet, the radio altimeter in its vector down to the surface only showed 40 feet in depth, revealing a hidden item below them.

In the last episode, I watched the scientific study reach a peak with unexplainable events and the principal scientist trying to explain more. The amount of high-tech equipment aimed into the sky was mysteriously switched off several times by the unknown, invisible object that hovered at 2000 feet. Experienced operators brought in all the equipment, bewildered at this unexplainable event. The team projected a laser beam upward, and it forked as it hit the object. A sudden flash of light, when viewed in slow motion, showed a shape. During these incidents, UFOs were witnessed and visually recorded. We wait for more.

Special note: From these facts, the object is advanced in structure and can repel all scans by hi-tech instruments. This points and relates to UFO stories that when sited over silos containing atomic missiles, they turned off all electronic equipment, including firing mechanisms. Governments do not want you to know this because there will only be a nuclear war if the advanced aliens allow it. So, in the future, there can only be wars with conventional weapons and robotic input.

As a part-time psychic, this can only mean future quantum power and energy are in use. The object is a wormhole equivalent or a dimensional portal that is auto-operated by advanced extraterrestrials.
